

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0042] An electronic dart game assembly and dart game include an electronically scored dart board which contains a plurality of scoring segments, a computer processing unit which provides a display with random scoring segment instructions that the player must meet, a countdown time for throwing a dart by the player, and a tabulation of the marks obtained by the player when the player achieves a predetermined game requirement, and dispensing an award to the player if the player has met a predetermined number of game requirements.